

NATIONAL TEXTILE ASSOCIATION

151st Annual Meeting

November 6-8
2005

Amelia Island Plantation
Amelia Island, Florida

Specific Strategies for Success

Welcome to the 151st Annual Meeting of the National Textile Association. Your Arrangements Committee has done a fine job of putting together a program that is a real "Meat and Potatoes" meal for anyone in the textile business. We believe we are right to hope that you will head home on Tuesday saying that you have had good food for thought and implementation.

The plenary sessions each day will examine the questions of global textile and apparel sourcing, global finance and credit, textile intellectual property, and military procurement of textile products.

The early morning meetings both days will offer an opportunity for in depth discussion on topics of interest to specific sectors within the American textile industry.

Be sure to also avail yourself of the opportunities for socializing with industry colleagues at golf, on the tennis courts, or on the tour of Fernandina Beach.

I hope you enjoy your stay at the Amelia Island Plantation.

--Jonathan A. Stevens

Speakers

Mary O'Rourke

Mary T. O'Rourke is co-founder and managing director of the Jassin~O'Rourke Group, a management consulting firm providing strategy development and implementation services exclusively to the fiber, textile, apparel and home furnishings industries and to related supply chain companies, industry trade groups and associations. Ms. O'Rourke's consulting experience in the textile industry spans twenty-two years. The firm is particularly adept in identifying and pre-screening foreign partners for marketing or manufacturing alliances, in Asia and in Latin America.

Gary Haines

Gary Raines serves as Manager, Fiber Economics at Cotton Incorporated. His responsibilities include analyzing fundamental and technical information about the markets for cotton and disseminating the information and analysis to industry decision-makers to help them make more informed decisions about using cotton. Gary holds two masters degrees, in economics and in textiles, as well as a B.S. in economics and a minor in statistics, all from N. C. State University.

David Trumbull

David Trumbull is Director of Member Services at the National Textile Association. He has been with NTA since 1994. He is responsible for research and analysis of U.S. trade regulations affecting textile companies and for communication to members of developments in textile trade. He helped draft the China textile safeguard petitions filed by the U.S. textile industry. He is also responsible for NTA industry statistical services program. He is a 1991 graduate of the University of Michigan.

Speakers
